Renault Sport Enthusiast Days 2008

2007 confirmed an interest in events for enthusiasts so in 2008, Renault Sport Technologies is once again organizing Renault Sport Enthusiast Days for owners of sports vehicles from the Renault Sport range.

Launched in 2005, Renault Sport Enthusiast Days have already welcomed over 2,500 enthusiasts (500 in 2005, 800 in 2006 and 1,200 in 2007). The programme this season includes days of circuit driving, opportunities to discover new Renault Sport products, vehicle test drives, driver tuition and tours of the Alpine Renault plant. In addition to the Renault Sport Enthusiast Days, a VIP welcome will again this year be reserved for those who bring along their Renault Sport Vehicle, or indeed any vehicle from the Renault collection, to World Series by Renault meetings.

29 Renault Sport Enthusiast Days will be organized in 2008, with capacity increased by 50% (2100 participants) in response to customer demand. The programme features all the elements that have made the Renault Sport Enthusiast Days so successful in the past:

- 14 Track days which are friendly and educational, during which participants make the very most of the dynamic qualities of their vehicle and can test drive Renault Sport vehicles with a support team on hand to give advice and ensure that safe driving rules are respected.
- 5 driving tuition sessions, which give participants the opportunity to discover the sensations associated with driving a single-seater or to learn how to master driving cars from the Renault Sport range.
- 6 tours of the Alpine Renault site at Dieppe offering the possibility to discover or re-discover the legendary plant where Renault Sport vehicles are assembled.
- 2 Discovery Days for the new Renault Sport 2008 range during which participants will be able to retrace the history of Renault's small sports cars by visiting the Renault collection at the Flins plant, before discovering what's new for Renault Sport in 2008 at the Ouest-Parisien circuit (Dreux Bois-Guyon)

- 2 special days at the Paul Ricard HTTT, including track sessions, and opportunities to meet with the teams taking part in the Mégane Trophy (who will be at the circuit for collective testing), test drive cars from the Renault Sport range and drive on the low-grip track.

- A Renault Sport Enthusiast Days Challenge which will reward the most regular participants with the following prizes:
  - First prize: Free registration for one car and two people at a Track day at the 2009 Renault Sport Enthusiast Days held in France.
  - 2nd prize: Free registration for one car and two people at a Track day at the 2009 Renault Sport Enthusiast Days held in France.
  - 3rd prize: Free registration for one car and one person at a 2009 Renault Sport Discovery day.

New features for 2008 include:

- Making Renault Sports vehicles available to people who do not own one to allow them to participate in Track days.

- A special rate for Renault Sport test drive/track experience sessions, enabling as many people as possible to enjoy an initiation to the circuit and to test drive various models from the Renault Sport range at track days.

- Four circuits that haven't yet hosted Renault Sport Enthusiast Days: l'Anneau du Rhin, Barcelona, Le Mans and the Paul Ricard HTTT.
